

Alan Jervis

Following a career as an engineer in the Royal Navy Alan became an Operating Department Practitioner working in the northwest of England. A passion for education led him to pursue a career as a Resuscitation and Simulation Officer. He has instructed on most national resuscitation courses and has been fortunate to be involved in their delivery and development in Greece and Cyprus.

From 2010 to 2017 he worked at Salford Royal managing learning and development functions, supporting quality improvement collaboratives, and maintained a clinical role responding to medical emergencies.

In 2017 he made the move to the southwest as Head of Education at Cornwall Partnership NHS Foundation Trust. Alan is Lead Educator for the Advanced Life Support Group and also works with the Resuscitation Council (UK) supporting the delivery of the Generic Instructor Course